Hello, future generations!

I was born in 2004 and since then I was always surrounded by different gadgets. So, it is not a surprise that a lot of electronic devices are part and parcel of my life. I'm convinced that every person has his own opinion about objects that play a vital role in their life but if you ask me a clock, light bulbs and central heating are (the) most significant nowadays.

Personally, I can't imagine my life without a clock or my watch. My whole life depends on what time it is. And it's not only about me: all people on our planet everyday wake up, have breakfast, leave home and so on on the exact time. Also, we all can't survive without light bulbs. We might not even notice but we are surrounded by them: our bedrooms, bathrooms, school classes and even streets are lightened by bulbs. The last but not least is central heating. Nowadays our houses are the places where we feel the safest. No matter what season it is I'm sure that at home it's warm and cozy.

All in all, it's obvious that our needs change everyday. We develop ourselves and the world around us and I hope that one day we won't depend on so many things.
