16	T; F; T; T; F People will learn that images, audio or video of something do not prove that it happened, any more than a drawing of it does. AI is improving all the time. Even the best detection system would have no crack to find an no ledge to grasp. AI models will probably be able to produce pixel-perfect counterfeits. So who posted something will become as important as what was posted.	2.5
17	1. From the printing press to the internet, new technologies have often made it easier to spread untruths; 2. AI is improving all the time, as computing power and training data become more abundant; 3. People will learn that images, audio or video do not prove that it happened; 4. via email addresses and social-media platforms; 5. Online content will no longer verify itself, so who posted something will become as important as what was posted.	1.5 0.5
18	1. Undeniable evidence of a certain fact 2. To not match up with one another 3. To be unable to detect fraudulent content 4. To cause worldwide panic 5. To differentiate between edited content and the original.	4.5

20	The rise of AI-generated content has flabbergasted society. The fumes are becoming harder to spot with the abundance of data. People fear that AI will become so plausible, that there will be no way to distinguish between original and AI-generated content. However, people will adapt and overcome this issue as the marketplace of ideas is not doomed.	3
