ТВОРЧЕСКОЕ ЗАДАНИЕ

It goes without saying that the search for intelligent life has been a popular discussion not only in the world of science, but across the whole society as well. One's argue that it is worthless to spend our priceless time on such activities, while others believe that someday, we may be able to reach someone on faraway lands. In my opinion, searching for life on other planets is relatively useless ~~now~~ at this point in time, and I am going to explain why in this essay.

First of all, building equipment that would be able to send messages to places light years away would, undoubtedly, be expensive. The ~~equipment~~^{technology} we have now is not too effective, and producing something new will definitely cost a lot of money, which can be used in other directions and solve world problems instead.

Secondly, as I mentioned previously, our society still faces many difficulties: poverty, hunger, even wars. Instead of trying to communicate with other lifeforms, we must fix ourselves first - then we will be ready for contact. Who knows, what if aliens will disapprove of our rude behaviour and attack us? Humanity will be doomed.

In general, although the idea of communicating with other intelligent lifeforms sounds ~~promising~~ incredible, people still have ~~too much~~ for ourselves need to focus on ourselves first. Only later, society will extend further into space far away.
