In the modern world more and more surveys into animal behaviour are being made. The fascinating facts they reveal about different living creatures can become a vital ~~research~~ resource for discoveries in our planet's history and development and help scientists understand the reasons of some seemingly unpredictable biological changes - both in human and ~~from~~ animal organisms.

16	1) F (sentences 2-3: "the task of adding almost as much as the entire generating capacity of America") 2) T ("rising costs [...] have led developers to abandon..." - sentence 2) 3) F (the demands are surging, as said in sentence 11) 4) F (protectionism, which raises costs" - sentence 15) 5) T ("considering investigating Chinese turbine-makers," sentences 18-19)
17	1) All members agree that clean energy is vitally important and realise that action must be taken. 2) Wind-turbine projects are failing because more effective machines have been invented by manufacturers. 3) The renewable energy industry is struggling because of slow approval, lack of development in the south and protectionism. 4) The investing can be made easier by finding foreign companies. 5) Some ways of solving the crisis are more strict legislation and fighting with protectionism.
18	1) to face difficulties; to struggle 2) take a big amount of money away 3) to take part of somebody's risk to yourself 4) to stop some local industries in favour of foreign ones 5) to take a certain fact into consideration even if it is unpleasant
19	1) to try, to make effort 2) an increase 3) lack 4) machinery 5) deeply, strongly
20	Nowadays more and more countries try to put effort into producing renewable energy. However, this industry is facing many problems like slow approval, lacking development and protectionism. While many governments are trying to invest into foreign companies, some more effective ways include developing permitting rules and dealing with the problem of protectionism.
