ТВОРЧЕСКОЕ ЗАДАНИЕ

We have the means to contact other intelligent life forms, if there are any, but to what extent should we do it? I'll try to answer this question.

Personally, I think we should do it constantly and in all directions at once to truly get something. Our planet is constantly moving and so is probably theirs, so we need to cover as much territory with our messages as possible.

Moreover, it's important to be sending several types of signal at the same time because we don't know what kind of technology do they have. For example, only a century or so ago our primary way of fast communication was radio, but now it's mostly replaced by electricity. So who knows what to aliens use?

However, if we truly want to find someone, I think it's crucial for us to invest in science and engineering to invent some ships or robots to launch outside of our universe. They would act like lighthouses in the dark sea for the other races willing to communicate, because our technology can only reach so far, and it's not enough.

Overall, I believe we should go all in if we wish to ~~find~~ contact someone or otherwise we can just miss them.
