ТВОРЧЕСКОЕ ЗАДАНИЕ

Nowadays there are some scientific researchers who are certain that there are other advanced creatures and that humans should strive to contact them. However, there is not much constructive evidence of that statement being true.

To my mind, humans not being the only intelligent life form out there is definitely something that should be thoroughly researched. Trying to connect with those allegedly advanced creatures might be highly beneficial for further development (of) and progress of humanity. If those researchers making statements about the definite existence of something that is just as complex, if not even more intelligent than humans are right, attempting to send them messages is a great first step to form an alliance with them. Additionally, whilst trying to get into contact with them, scientists ~~might~~ ^{might} stumble across valuable evidence, that could prove or debunk those statements.

Although, there might be some reasons not to attempt to encourage a conversation with these "other life forms". Scientists, whilst trying to indoctrinate the public with the message of us not being in solitude, would spend unbelievable amounts of money ~~spent~~. It is uncertain that spending such huge budgets on something with no concrete evidence is rational.

In conclusion, I believe that modern science trying to determine the multiplicity of creatures in our universe is a beneficial thing, ~~also~~ although it should not be done obsessively.

3.1. Nowadays there are some scientific researchers who are certain that there are other advanced ~~forms of life~~ ^{creatures} somewhere in the universe, and that ~~the~~ humans should strive to contact with them. However, there is not really much constructive evidence of that statement being true. (15)

To my mind, humans not being the only intelligent life form out there is definitely something that should be thoroughly researched. Trying to connect with those allegedly advanced creatures might be ^{highly} beneficial for the further development and progress of ~~our~~ ^{humanity's} society. If those researchers making statements about the definite existence of something that is just as advanced, or possibly even more intelligent than humans are ~~wright~~ ^{right}, * attempting to encourage some sort of a conversation with those life forms can actually result in ~~finding~~ ^{finding} more evidence ~~supporting or~~ ^{supporting or} attempting to ~~send them~~ ^{send them} messages ~~to~~ ^{to} them. Additionally, whilst trying to contact other life forms ~~is a great first step~~ ^{is a great first step} ~~to form an alliance with~~ ^{to form an alliance with} ~~them~~ ^{them} ~~outside the Earth, scientists and researchers might stumble~~ ^{outside the Earth, scientists and researchers might stumble} across some valuable evidence, ~~with~~ ^{with} ~~which~~ ^{which} ~~can actually~~ ^{can actually} result in putting an end to this debate. (100)

Although, there might be reasoning behind not attempting at this communication with such little evidence - scientists, whilst trying to indoctrinate the public with the belief ~~of~~ ^{of} other life forms, are spending unbelievable amounts of money. It is uncertain that putting a big part ⁽²⁰⁰⁾ of the budget into something that has no concrete proof of being true is rational. (15)

To sum it up, I believe that modern science trying to determine the ~~or~~ multiplicity of creatures in ~~the~~ ^{our} universe is a beneficial thing, it should not be done obsessively.
