ТВОРЧЕСКОЕ ЗАДАНИЕ

The concept of life on the other planets has always aroused debates. Some people think that various intelligent life forms should be found and contacted as soon and as often as possible. To my mind, messages should be sent to contact intelligent life forms but it should be done responsibly and rarely. In this essay I am going to prove my point of view with arguments.

Firstly, people should remember that they are trying to contact completely unknown civilizations. These messages are crucially important for space exploration, so the information in them should be as brief as possible. The Earth civilization does not have to tell everything about itself and only special facts are enough.

Secondly, people should send messages to space very rarely as the messages sent in special capsules can easily become space junk and ^{the} messages sent with radio can not reach the planets in other galaxies. Also, if there are no life forms on other planets or if they are not intelligent sending a massive amount of messages is useless.

In conclusion, the attempts to contact intelligent life forms on other planets *should be thoroughly thought about. Everything has its limits and, like messaging people, messaging other civilizations

does not have to be overly informative
or too excessive.*

The misunderstanding created tension between the characters but eventually the conflict ended as Nathalie explained everything to Brantain.
