ВАРИАНТ № 3

During the last five years, AI has taken all over the world. It seems that AI is everywhere and it's impossible to escape it.

I think that the most obvious cause for the spread of AI is people's ^{desire to save money} ~~laziness~~. Employers want to have cheap labour so they replace their workers with AI in order ^{not to pay their salary} ~~to save money~~.

A solution for this would be to teach everyone the value of people's work. No matter how advanced AI is, it would never be able to replace human creativity and problem solving. It might seem that AI is more reliable, but that's not true. AI doesn't have emotions so it wouldn't be able to make difficult decisions unlike a human.

In addition, students nowadays use AI to do their homework ^{or to cheat on it} ~~because~~ of their laziness. A solution for this problem is to check whether a student's work contains AI or not and lowering their grade because of it. Children need to be taught that gaining knowledge is important and taking shortcuts will do no favours in their future life.

In conclusion, I want to say that AI has lowered the value of people's work. If we don't learn to respect it, AI will totally replace humanity.

The first step in the process of creating a new product is to identify a market need. This involves conducting market research to understand the preferences and behaviors of potential customers. Once a need is identified, the next step is to develop a concept that addresses this need. This concept should be innovative and differentiated from existing products in the market.

Following the development of a concept, the next stage is to create a detailed business plan. This plan should outline the production process, distribution channels, and marketing strategy. It should also include financial projections to estimate the costs and potential revenue of the new product.

Once the business plan is complete, the next step is to secure funding. This can be done through various means, such as seeking investors, applying for loans, or crowdfunding. Once funding is secured, the next stage is to develop a prototype of the product. This prototype will be used to test the concept and gather feedback from potential customers.

After the prototype is developed, the next step is to conduct a pilot production run. This run will allow the company to test the production process and identify any issues that need to be addressed. Once the pilot run is complete, the company can then proceed to full-scale production.

Finally, the last step in the process is to launch the product into the market. This involves implementing the marketing strategy outlined in the business plan and distributing the product through the chosen channels. The company should continue to monitor the product's performance in the market and make adjustments as needed.

16	1) My building's in terrible condition. No one else in New York would have a tearoom with roses in their backyard. 2) It's a shame to let a lovely house like that just die. It's a bit of a wreck, but it has good bones. 3) A mere fraction of what it was worth.
17	It's a shame to let a lovely house 1) She wore a crisp black silk dress with a ruff of white lace at her throat. 2) Fiona was sure that a tearoom with hundreds of roses would attract a lot of customers. 3) As she talked on, Fiona noticed Miss Nicholson was listening intently. 4) "I can't. He married someone else," she said quickly, mortified at admitting this to a stranger. 5) Miss Nicholson changed her mind after she heard that Fiona's loved one left her because she was in a similar situation.
18	A kind old lady 2) make the place better and complete. 3) Fiona was starting to get comfortable with Miss Nicholson's company. 4) Miss Nicholson was starting to take Fiona's side. 5) Miss Nicholson fooled with Fiona or was playing with her like a toy. 1) Fiona imagined Miss Nicholson as a kind old lady. 2) Roses would make the tearoom better and complete.
19	1) spouse 2) striking 3) ruin 4) calm 5) part
20	My title for the story would be "Bloom like a flower". Fiona's heart was broken after her loved one left her. She asked Miss Nicholson to rent her place which had a lot of flowers. Miss Nicholson saw that Fiona "wilted" after mentioning her spouse so she allowed her to rent the tearoom so Fiona could "bloom" once again.
