ВАРИАНТ № 1

The scarcity of food has always been an enormous problem that greatly affected the development of the world. The lower classes of society have always lacked food, whereas the upper classes thrived. As there are a plethora of causes of lack of food, there are multiple solutions for this issue.

Influential bourgeois create a situation where people with a low position in society have no choice but to toil for their masters while the wages of the poor ~~themselves~~ are too small to provide enough food for themselves.

A solution I would suggest is creating mandatory charity programmes that affluent people are bound to invest in. This would alleviate the sufferings of some starving people, to an extent.

Moreover, lack of food is a consequence of the rapid population growth after the 2nd World War. There are simply not enough resources for eight billion people on this planet. However, there is something that can be done. The government could create legislative measures preventing food waste, ~~with those~~ can be reduced. Also, rich people should be made to invest in charity. Government interference

20	"Rebecca's sanctuary" This title would fit the short story, because the water in which Rebecca was swimming made her forget about all the unpleasant things happening in her life. It even could make her not worry about such a fractious woman as Adele. The "sanctuary" represented a place to where Rebecca could go to alleviate her stress and relax profoundly.
