Consumerism has become one of the problems commonly discussed in the media. Not only do people waste money on various knickknacks, but also on large amounts of food that they proceed to throw away. Why ~~is~~ is it so and what do we do?

Advertising is one key contributor to this issue. We all are constantly exposed to ~~infor~~ ~~mational~~ informational noise: bloggers promote trendy foods, billboards display fancy restaurant ads... It's all here, there, and everywhere! The availability is nothing short of tempting. What makes matters worse is the increase in global welfare: now more people can afford to satisfy their cravings, which leads to biting more than they can chew (literally).

It can't go without mentioning that governmental restrictions tend to do more harm than good. I believe to ~~the~~ reduce the amount of food waste, changes have to happen within the society. It should be our (gen-Zers') responsibility to educate future generations on being conscious of one's environment. ~~the~~ Parents should provide their children with access to educational resources, which would enable them to learn about global problems themselves. If they figure things out on their own, it will result in much less stubbornness.

I hope my point is clear: don't condition your children into consumerism! We need to overcome our greed and project that lifestyle onto others—this is, in my opinion, the only way of dealing with food waste.

Those who could not brought her butter and cheese, fish, tortillas, eggs, and fiery pepper sauce." 2) "Ramon had it, the speculator had gone bankrupt and that the doctor had bought the land from him. Some said she had money of her own ..." 3) "This is just like the fairy stories you used to tell me"
17	1) On weekdays the doctor attended to her patients, and her daughter attended the local school. 2) To do so would have been to admit that the hard and simple things of life — love, hope, faith were foolish and counted for nothing. 3) — "the thin, haggard man"; "handsome, but gaunt"; "he walked with the help of a cane".
18	1) High-quality farm grounds 2) Checked up on the sick 3) everyday after 6 p.m. 4) had no value, didn't affect anything 5) press one's face against something so that it's not visible to others.

20	"Just like the fairy stories." The title would be suitable because the main most intriguing aspect of the text is whether Mr. Baxter exists or not. His appearance is almost magical, hence the fairy tale-like mood. This is also a quote from the story, and seeing these words closer to the end would make the reader express a positive reaction.
