ВАРИАНТ № 1

In many part of the world, there is not enough food for everyone. There are different reasons for this. Firstly, it depends on the climate of a country. In some continents the weather is dry and hot and plants don't grow, so it is really difficult to deal with food. Secondly, economic of the country plays an important role. While in some parts of the world technologies are developing and the foods are in profusion, in the other parts of the world there are still not enough big cities. Moreover, if you live in the countryside, you grow food for yourself. But what should people do if one day there will be no good conditions for plants and vegetables? They start starving.

Talking about solutions, I would suggest not to waste products. There is a good rule of three R's: "Reduce, recycle, reuse". Also it's important to improve the economical situation in other countries. In Africa there are many organizations have appeared. They help for free by investing money or giving donates. I think there should be more such organizations all over the world.

To conclude, I can say that the lack of food is an urgent problem now, but
