ВАРИАНТ № 2

One of the main today's problems is overconsumism. People tend to acquire more goods than they really need. Consequently, enormous amounts of food from shops and restaurants are wasted.

Why does it occur? Firstly, people subconsciously fear deficits and privations. By purchasing excessive amounts of products they console themselves. Secondly, even those who would like to buy less ~~are~~ are deprived of such an ^{opportunity} ~~possibility~~ as packages, in which goods are sold, are inseparable. Thirdly, people from rural areas deliberately buy more than necessary to spare the necessity to come back ^{to the city}, as they do not have shops ~~nearby~~. ~~consequently~~ in their area.

What can we do to tackle this problem? First and foremost, it is vital to raise awareness of the issue. Secondly, the ~~issue~~ ^{problem} with packages should be sorted out. In case, with liquids, dispensers ~~that~~ should be installed. Thus, people will ~~manage~~ ^{be able} to acquire the exact ~~exactly needed~~ amounts of goods and, consequently, waste less. What is more, remote areas should be included into ~~the~~ delivery programs to ~~reduce~~ eliminate the necessity of ~~unnecessary~~ ^{the inhabitants to buy} ~~buying~~ more than required.

In conclusion, it is vital to ~~start~~ start tackling the problem as soon as possible. Moreover, not only ordinary people should be ~~is~~ involved, but also the authorities. ~~as the~~ ^{they} must facilitate society to reduce the waste.
