In many parts of the world food is a limited resource, consequently many people stay hungry on the regular basis. In this essay I am going to state some probable reasons for this global issue, as well as solutions to it.

To start with, it is crucial to understand what can cause the lack of food. Firstly, it is worth looking at the exact country's demographic. Is it overpopulated? Probably, yes. It means that local government should take actions required to reduce the quantity of residents. For example, the number of children in one family could be decreased ~~from three to one~~ to one. This way the slower reproduction rate would lead to the eradication of famine.

Furthermore, lack of fertile soil can also be a valid reason. Enriching soil with minerals to ensure its renovation can be considered a great solution. The link here is quite clear: in order to receive food from nature, people should take care of the ecology first.

Last but not least, such a thing as colonial dependence might prevent a country from developing a structured and well-functioning food industry, because all the goods are transferred to the "owner". In this case independence should be reached at all costs.

In conclusion, there is no doubt that famine is as global a problem as wars, epidemics and natural disasters and that it must be addressed. It is vital that people from all over the world cooperate to provide every country with equally good living conditions, including food.

16	1) The humidity throughout the long day had been exhausting and not even the air conditioning could cope entirely with the damp heat. 2) Adele had been particularly trying \ the constant demands of a fractious, unhappy woman \ closed the door thankfully. 3) Rebecca swam strongly out to where the water deepened to dappled green and turning on to her back floated for a while, her hair spread like seaweed around her.
17	1) As Adele's nurse died around 8 years ago, it can be inferred that Rebecca had been working for this very amount of time. 2) Given that Adele is nearly 40 and left England ten years ago, it would mean that she was approximately 30. 3) I can assume that the illness she suffered from has something to do with her heart. 4) The reason is clear - no one else was there, she could be on her own. 5) Well, it is stated that she wished to escape some unhappy life circumstances, though it is difficult to provide more accurate information.
18	1) a pleasant wind appeared 2) as something she must inherit 3) an inability, or even disability to think straight 4) a place where one can relax and regain mental balance 5) to embrace one's duties, e.g. at work.
19	1) difficult 2) different 3) demanding 4) ill 5) whitening
20	Rebecca's Tough Life. In my opinion, the title provided is suitable, since it correlates with the story's plot. Rebecca's life is really not very easy: her Adele, whose nurse she is, can be described as a demanding woman, so it is not comfortable to share a house with her. Moreover, Rebecca's previous life situation was not a prize either.
