ВАРИАНТ № 2

One of the most topical ecological issues nowadays is food waste. People keep disposing of the products they buy ~~unconsciously~~. I assume that there are various reasons for such behaviour. The main ones, to my mind, are the volumes in which many products are sold and the change in our households. It is now typical for European and American people to live on their own. When there is just one person, the household becomes less eco-friendly: a single man or woman simply cannot finish one litre of milk, a pack of muffins and a huge pack of eggs in a week, few days. As the packaging is often aimed at bigger families, it becomes challenging not to waste food.

I could propose a few viable solutions. First, the producers should reconsider their packaging and make the volumes smaller. Second, we could endorse the creation of such platforms as Doggybag. Thanks to them restaurants can sell the products that are about to expire at a lower price. Third, we should keep raising awareness about ~~sustainability~~ such an issue as food waste, just like the UN, for example, strongly promotes its Sustainability goals.

It is up to us whether the situation will change ~~for the better~~ or not. I strongly believe that if we - consumers and producers - started to collaborate, all of us would benefit from this.

16	1) Those who could pay, did. Those who could not brought her butter and cheese, fish, tortillas, eggs, and spicy pepper sauce. 2) Rumor had it the spectacular ^{speculator} had gone bankrupt and the doctor had bought the land from him. Some said she had money of her own and would build... 3) This is just like the fairy stories you used to tell me.
17	1) On weekdays the doctor worked with her patients and her daughter went to school. Every evening they both went to the station. 2) Because to stop believing was worse than more difficult than to keep believing. Moreover, to do so would have been to admit that love, hope and faith meant nothing. 3) He was "thin, haggard", got off the train "after everyone else". He was also "gaunt", he "walked with a cane". The conductor was handing his bag, not Mr. Baxter himself.
18	1) High-quality and suitable for living and farming 2) Visited people at their homes, cured them there. 3) Whenever the evening comes 4) Did not mean a thing 5) Got close to somebody (someone's face)
19	1) notice 2) amount 3) descend 4) disabled 5) say goodbye
20	Point Reyes: waiting for a miracle I believe that this title shows the whole idea of the story: to finally seeing Mr. Baxter was a miracle for many characters at once - for his wife, daughter and John as well. And the geographical name makes it more concrete, creates a strong link to ^{between} the unreal (miraculous appearance of Mr. Baxter) and the real (a certain place).
