There is a common opinion that AI seems to be taking over the globe. Indeed, AI has occupied almost all the spheres of human lives and it is pointless to deny it. However, little do people know about the possible causes of AI creation, and, as a result, there are no offered solutions aimed at coping with AI globalisation.

One way or another, it is utterly impossible to imagine the humanity without AI, since it controls every digital process. Initially, it was created to simplify people's lives and replace certain duties that AI can do itself. Consequently, with the introduction of AI, people's lifestyles have changed drastically, leading to global laziness.

Having the technological machine that is capable of replacing ~~human~~ jobs, people began lounging around and chilling. To resolve this "influx of laziness" AI should be used with limits. It can serve as a source of information, but should not ^{reduce} ~~replace~~ working places. Therefore, the creators of AI should present only a limited version of it.

Overall, ~~It~~ ambivalent as it proves to be, it gives the humanity endless information ~~while~~ but prevents people from working. Hence it is only up to us to ~~scrutinize~~ scrutinize it beneficially for our own ^{wellness} ~~wellbeing~~. At least, we can try to do so.
