ВАРИАНТ № 1

It goes without saying that many people suffer because there is not enough food for everyone. I am going to give my opinion on this statement and suggest solutions to this problem.

To my mind, the biggest causes for this problem are economics and politics. Most countries' governments can not impact their currency nor they can create or develop their bounds with bigger countries. Therefore, it causes problems with exporting and importing different goods that are needed for a well-being. However, this situation could be solved with the help of world leaders, but they seem not to know about this issue.

Still, there are many ways to solve it. One of them is to try and make this topic more viral online. People from all around the world should know about this problem and talk about it. When the society is aware, the politicians will start to discuss it too. Once the problem is trending, it is time for world leaders to take an action. That way, the global problem of lacking food will not be an issue in a few decades.

To conclude, I can say that there are many problems that people should solve. As long as people try, we can make our world a better place.
