Nowadays, people's waste of food is almost inexorable and considered a vital issue in our society. Personally, I think that ~~the~~ such tendency can be explained by our consumerism-influenced mentality. ~~Nowadays~~, these days, people are used to being provided with all the goods and usually don't feel any guilt wasting them. However, there are several ways to reduce the amount of food that is being thrown away and I will provide them in this essay.

First and foremost, the government should increase people's awareness on the wasting issue. The government is the trust-worthy source for public, and the more people know about the problem - the more will try to solve it. Secondly, there should be a special campaign or department regarding the food waste. It will also work out faster if there is an inspiring leader that people, especially the young ones, can look up to and feel a sense of ~~community~~ community. And lastly, the popular nets of restaurants or convenience stores should consider ~~making~~ making the advertisement which implies anti-waste propaganda. It can be very simple and subtle, but it will make a change.

Overall, all of the solutions I provided imply increasing public awareness on the issue, since only by shifting people's mentality and ideas we can achieve the 20	"5:15 San Francisco" - I think that this title creates a certain sense of intrigue and encourages the the for people to read the story in order to understand its meaning. This particular train plays the crucial role in the story, representing representing the characters' hope and faith that eventually comes true. Thus, in my opinion this title suits the mood of the story and suits it well.
