5	The system of computer-based learning tends to revolutionize the educational process. It has many possible positive changes for students. In my opinion, the biggest benefit is the personalization of receiving knowledge. It provides a detailed analysis of the mind of a student and makes it clear where there is room for improvement.

20	The looming crisis of climate change demands urgent action to help individuals and the environment. As surveys show, this global problem causes stress and worries regarding the future. Social power dynamics can influence people, however it is important to accept these feelings as a collective trauma and start a pro-environmental lifestyle to empower individuals while the governments are thinking about what to do.
