ВАРИАНТ № 3

There's no use denying that AI has become a part of our lives. It helps us to do monotonous tasks and to create something we couldn't ever make ourselves.

The first reason for such importance of AI is the advance in technology. The last century was ~~the~~ a time of great plans and inventions, and it was exactly then when people started to consider AI. Nowadays there are tonnes of new programs appearing every day: from AI book-writing to AI-generated songs.

More importantly, AI is extremely easy to use, since they "speak" human language perfectly. Without knowing a thing about AI, ~~it~~ you can still use it to cheat on exams. That's rather convenient.

However, the cost of AI doesn't come cheap. The number of "AI-artists" and "AI-musicians" is increasing rapidly, causing fierce fights among people. Can we consider artists ~~who~~ ^{that} only ask AI to create pictures real artists? Can they compete with human artists or is it cheating? Those questions are still to be answered.

ВАРИАНТ № 3

I believe that to overcome these issues some special programs, which could distinguish AI and human works, should be introduced. But considering the popularity of AI world wide, this might not be enough. Perhaps, some AI-related laws should be adopted ~~arranged~~ globally, as well.
