Вариант № 3

16	1) He led her into a parlor every bit as gloomy as the foyer. "A day before the wedding, her intended jilted her and it destroyed her..." 2) It's a shame to let a lovely house like that just die... "It's a bit of a wreck, but it has good bones." 3) "A mere fraction of what it was worth."
17	1) The third sentence proves this fact. 2) Fiona was certain that the tea roses roses adorning the tearoom would bring in customers like moths to a flame. 3) The fiftieth sentence proves this fact. 4) Sentence number 48 pr shows this detail. 5) Having experienced devastating heartbreak in the past, Miss Nicholson could relate to Fiona's own predicament and sympathised with her, which led to the decision to sell the house to her.
18	1) a lovely senile person 2) spruce up the building 3) to speak freely to gain hope 4) earning her trust and interest 5) toyed with her played with her emotions
19	1) intended - fiancé 2) piercing - unsettling 3) dash - dump 4) ruminative - thoughtful 5) fraction - margin
20	I would suggest the title "Sympathy in Tragedy". Miss Nicholson had gone through terrible heartbreak in the past, which did not help her suspicion towards Fiona. However, when she found out that Fiona had gone experienced a similar tragic event, Miss Nicholson decided to practically give away the house, knowing exactly how the young woman felt, hence the name title.

ТВОРЧЕСКОЕ ЗАДАНИЕ

AI technologies have been rapidly advancing for the past few years, and the speed at which they are developing is unlike anything we have seen before, and, like any other change humanity has undergone, it is a double-edged sword.

Many reasons are at play in this sudden rise of AI. However, the prime cause is unequivocally the dire need in automation. Information is a huge part of the post-industrial era, and human labour is becoming progressively more irrelevant when it comes to working with enormous databases: it takes a comically large amount of time and effort to find specific data, let alone process it. This is where AI comes into play, capable of rifling through arrays of information with speed that easily outperforms any human. While this serves as an amplifier of technological progress, many people are at risk of losing their job to AI.

One solution to this issue AI presents is to simply limit its usage in fields where it is unnecessary, such as education, as artificial intelligence ^{can} ~~could~~ never replace a real teacher. Alternatively, the education system could be expanded upon with AI-dedicated faculties, given that neural networks require much human involvement to function.

Any major advancement humanity makes comes with its downsides. However, it is without a doubt that AI could open a path to a new era of civilization.
