20	The climate change demands urgent action to save lives, yet global leaders barely do anything. That leads to many people feeling anxiety. A term like "climate anxiety" implies that it's a personal problem, that's why PTMF offers to focus on the context of the problem instead. Society also influences individuals in bad and good ways. All in all, addressing climate distress requires systematic changes from government.

5	According to the text, computer-based learning is mostly about AI. AI is capable of quick learning and using the information later. That means that AI can study learner's behavior and seek pattern to find a way of studying, which would let the student memorize quicker and better. It guarantees an individual system of studying for everyone.
