Food is an essential requirement for people to function. In some countries the question of supplying enough food presents as an alarming issue.

There are many causes for this problem to exist, one of which can be the difference in climate zones. For instance, northern countries get much less sunlight. Hence, it is hard to grow many plants here, get a fruitful crop and maintain cattle. In such ~~can~~ countries the shortage of supplies is noticed. Second cause may be that the cost of imported goods for ~~northern~~ these countries is quite high and the government in order to save money decides not to purchase many of these supplies.

Some ways of tackling this problem may be brought up. Firstly, it is essential for countries to present a united front when it comes to the question of food. Creating an organization in which the cost of trade between the participants is lower ~~will~~ would be a great solution. Secondly, making some chemical supplements to growing plants would also help. Despite food being grown slightly artificially, it is still better than no food at all. This would protect the plants and help them to endure ~~a~~ freezing periods.

To conclude, the issue of food shortage is a worrying one and people should unite to resolve it once and for all.
